You may have a pillow, or your head might have to fit into a special cradle, explains the Mayo Clinic. Afterward, you can usually resume your regular routine. In this case, look for disposal options, which include recycling. Disposing of Large Electronics Televisions fall into the category of large electronics. Some communities offer this service without fees, but others may charge you to recycle your old TV. If you don't have an option for recycling with your community, try a take-back program. Visit the e-Stewards website to find a participating center near you where you can drop off your television. Call the manufacturer of your television or a few retailers in your area to see if this is an option too. Find an E-Steward. E-Stewards are responsible recyclers located throughout the country. Sometimes straps are used to keep you in a position. When you upgrade your television, you're likely going to be the proud owner of more TVs than you currently want or need. Some manufacturers and retailers offer services to accept or pick up electronics, and this service might be free or could involve a fee. The technician can hear and speak with you, and you might be instructed to hold your breath at certain points. If you're having this type of CT scan, you may need to drink the contrast material prior to the scan. Televisions, amplifiers, printers, computers and other large devices have internal components that should be removed and recycled. If your television is older with a cathode ray tube, it contains hazardous mercury and lead. Most donation centers don't accept these older models, and you'll need to find a recycling center that specifically accepts them. If your television is a smart TV, reset it to factory settings so that none of your personal information remains in the system. Bundle the cord neatly, and secure it with a rubber band or twist tie. The search tool on the site enables you to search with your zip code.
